

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides a blade for supporting an applicator pad. The applicator pad includes a plurality of bristles that extend outwardly from the blade. The blade can be flexible to apply coating material to obstructed surfaces. The blade and applicator pad can be part of a kit for applying coating material such as paint or stain to a surface. The kit can also provide a handle for supporting the blade during application of coating materials. An adapter can be connected to the end of the handle to connect a second handle to the first handle and extend the reach of the blade.